

CROSS MYTHOLOGIES AND THE ANTHROPOCENE

Mesopotamia and Greek Mythos: Interdisciplinary Exploration through Performance, Space, and Poetics

Batman, 7-11/04/2025

This Blended Erasmus Project allows us to build a dynamic triangle between three schools: Batman University, Department of English Language and Literature (Batman/Turkey), University of Thessaly, Department of Culture, Creative and Industries and Department of Architecture (Volos/Greece), and the Free University of Bozen-Bolzano (BozenBolzano/Italy). The project brings together scholars from diverse disciplines such as anthropology, art, architecture, literature, and eco-social design around one common theme: humanity's connection to nature. It aims to explore the relationship between nature and human activities through these distinct critical lenses. It seeks to acquaint young learners with a more informed outlook on the life that surrounds them. Participants engage in workshops organized by scholars on various subjects, and partake in field trips related to some of these subjects. We explore the realms of world mythologies with a focus on performance, spatial dynamics, poetics, and ecological consciousness. Through workshops, discussions, and practical exercises led by experts from various fields, we promote cultural exchange and collaborative research.
